By Anna.Q: Rails 3.1 : Rack::Session::Cookie::Cookie.new returns nil, but cookie is generated and onload (FireFox) I am using Rails 3.1 with Geokit to map coordinates to a location I have added the map in my default layout but it generates an error. The server cannot determine the URL for the current request from information available. after checking the sourcecode I found the problem is related to "Rack::Session::Cookie::Cookie.new" returning nil, but the cookie is generated and onload it's ok. if I remove the line : it's ok, so I presume it's a Geokit problem, I tried to add: Geokit::Geocoders::coordinates_geocoder = GeoKit::Geocoders::CoordinatesGeocoder.new(Geokit::Configuration.new.coordinates_geocoder_default_settings) but without success, so any help or ideas about what I should check or do to fix this will be appreciated. The app is running on rails 3.1.1, the gem is version "0.6.2", the site is running on nginx. A: You need to put your custom Geocoder into the config/initializers/geokit.rb file
