

I found the cracking of this apk file (trial version) from a bit of google-search work on this issue. I'm sure its not the only internet problem that can be avoided through parental control software. Using a VPN is a good way to make sure internet traffic isn't intercepted or blocked. Using a Chrome web-browser downloader (such as DownThemAll) can be used to force a new update to the browser without downloading and installing a whole new browser. I think the owners of Net Nanny should read this post and give some attention to the issue. Q: How can I change the theme of an activity in Android? I would like to implement a modal box that looks like this: If I make a dialog that I create like so: AlertDialog.Builder builder = new AlertDialog.Builder(this); builder.setView(LayoutInflater.from(this).inflate(R.layout.dialog_layout,null)); AlertDialog dialog = builder.create(); dialog.show(); The dialog has a black background, as expected. I want to change that to a custom color. How can I change the theme of the activity and therefore the background color of the dialog? A: You can use android.support.v7.app.AlertDialog instead of android.app.AlertDialog. And this is how you can change its background color: @Override public void setContentView(int layoutResID) { super.setContentView(R.layout.dialog_layout); getWindow().getDecorView().setBackgroundColor(Color.YOUR_COLOR); } A: I assume you are asking how to change the theme for the whole app, and you should find it in the manifest under the application section: Fluorocarbon based solvents have been widely used in industry for decades. However, many of these solvent systems are being phased out due to worldwide pollution regulations and adverse effects to the earth's atmosphere. Moreover, many such solvents are also toxic and/or flammable. Thus, there is a great need for non-toxic, non-flammable, low- or no-VOC solvents that
