
Rovi (MainConcept) TotalCode 6.0.3 (x64) UPDATED

Rovi (MainConcept) TotalCode 6.0.1 (x86) A: Yes, you need it. It is required to convert the sound tracks into uncompressed Wave format. Premiere Pro CS4 did not have this option by default, and simply tried to play the sound file. Other applications could play the video while sound was being played, but the two would play at the same time, and thus became quite a mess.

Some people decided not to get TotalCode, and went about using MS Sound Recorder to record the sound for editing and converting back to MP3 after the editing process was done. The other advantage that TotalCode brings to the editing room is that one can use a single track to render their video in the compositing process. Other applications like Apple's Final Cut Pro will open a dialog box asking you to choose what you are rendering from. Although it was simply a dialog box, it has a delay in rendering so it is most helpful to render the video one frame at a time, which is difficult or time consuming with other applications. I am not sure whether TotalCode will help you with the other tasks, but I have to admit that it does its job well.
