A: I'd recommend downloading Esri's quick start guide, CityEngine and I'd recommend using their ESRI files for basic city layout based mapping. Download the CityEngine Toolkit for ArcGIS and run the esriConfig.py file, which will configure the scripts and toolbox in your toolbox. Then download the CityEngine tutorial data package (available from the download tab on the Esri website) for your use. Q: Intercept directory with .NET Core Context I'm currently managing a web application using .NET Core version 1.0.1. We have an existing web site with a folder "protected" which needs to be guarded in order to keep data & readme files. Question Is there a way in .NET Core to intercept the request of any file/folder in the "protected" directory to the application? A: Yes, if you set physicalPathMode to FileMode.Open (or DirectoryMode.Open, when needed) for the DirectoryInfo, and specify the directory to look at, you'll get the absolute path when the FileInfo is requested. See here, especially the section on Physical Path. Code sample: static void Main(string[] args) { var path = Path.Combine(Directory.GetCurrentDirectory(), "protected"); var pathMode = Directory.Exists(path) ? FileMode.Open : FileMode.Directory; var fi = new DirectoryInfo(path); while (fi != null) { Console.WriteLine(fi.Name); fi = fi.Parent; } }
