Visual Studio 2013 Update 4 - Can't Install, Error - "A required license extension is not installed" After installing Update 4 for Visual Studio 2013, I can't install any extensions in Visual Studio (or the built-in VS tools). I get the following error message: "A required license extension is not installed." I looked at Microsoft's site, and found that the latest update to the extension manager for VS2013 is March 14, 2014, so I uninstalled all previous versions of the extension manager, but I still get the same error message. I don't get the error message when installing extensions from the Microsoft Store. A: There is a solution here that solves the problem. Thanks to @mister-reboot for this solution: I tried this and the same error occurred: A required license extension is not installed. I then went to the online store to update the Microsoft.VisualStudio.ExtensibilityHostingWizard (version 1.0.5078.0) extension and followed the instructions from "License Status Changes" in the description for VS2013. I can't vouch for the link. Dogs love to be the centre of attention, but not always for the best reasons. A dog in Thailand has been sentenced to death for allegedly raping a baby. The dog's owner was convicted for having sex with the six-month-old girl, who is now six months old.

He could get the death penalty if he is proven to be the father of the baby. The baby's mother was also caught having sex with the dog, while her boyfriend is said to have been the one to throw the dog away. The Thailand animal control said: "This case is quite uncommon and I'm afraid this is the first time we have this. "It's quite unusual, but the owner is going to have to face the consequences." The baby was allegedly born of the mother's love for her dog.Q: What's the difference between strcpy_s and strcpy in Windows?
