I would like to split the names and then make them into a list or some kind of list. A: We can try to use split() function and then turn the elements into a list: for i in df['Name']: print(i.split('/'))

Immunochemical characterization of carboxypeptidase H in human brain microvessels. We have raised rabbit antisera to purified human brain microvessel membranes, using bovine carboxypeptidase H (CPH) as the immunogen. In Western blot analysis of human brain microvessel membranes, a single, immunoreactive protein band at pH 6.2 is detected with the CPH antiserum. This band was also detected with an antiserum to bovine kidney membranes. In addition, with this antiserum, the immunoreactive protein band was found in human kidney cortex membranes but not in human liver membranes. We have also studied carboxypeptidase H in human brain microvessel membranes. The apparent molecular weight of the enzyme in sodium dodecyl sulfate polyacrylamide gel electrophoresis was 110,000 and in the absence of denaturing agents in sodium dodecyl sulfate, it migrated as a single band of approximately 110,000 daltons. The enzyme did not catalyze the release of [3H]phenylalanylalanine from [3H]phenylalanylleucine in vitro and the enzyme was inhibited by bestatin and p-chloromercuribenzoic acid. The optimal pH was 7.2. The inhibitor specificity of human brain microvessel carboxypeptidase H was similar to that of the carboxypeptidase H of bovine kidney cortex. Rabbit antisera to the enzyme
