Only properties explicitly declared in a property block are associated with an attribute and are updated when that attribute changes. In the module, we checked the existence of all properties, and they were all created and successfully updated. Associating an attribute with its value was not difficult. Here is the code: `import stdio import sys folder = { "/backup/"; ", "; } fd = folder output = output` If you open a file, edit the data and close it, the files will be updated, i.e. their properties will be updated: A: This error is displayed because you didn't include the library `dhdevelop` for `fd`. In the listing, I gave an example of connecting the library: screenshot Here is an example of connecting using the library: `dhtf`>:
