The final chapter in the FIFA Trilogy FIFA Soccer was the world's best-selling sports videogame for more than a decade - including a total of over 135 million units sold over a 10 year period. Over ten years ago, the series was defined by its classic style, sleek presentation, authentic team and player presentation. FIFA 21 will bring back the series' successful gameplay with more than 20,000 new animations (including "Enhanced Strike" moves) and 2,000 new player celebrations - including personal favorites like the "Quadruple Threat" and "U.S. Women's World Cup Victory" celebrations. In addition, a launch trailer will be released on Tuesday, September 4. Enhanced Team Management FIFA 21 brings back the "Designated Players" - with an unprecedented level of customization and flexibility - to bring the most authentic, fluid team experience ever available. The design process of a top squad changes based on each player's performance on the pitch. Players earn skill points based on their production on the pitch. These points are then spent in the player's Development Bar at the end of the game, with players who have the highest level of skill being able to spend their points for the best-in-class team performance. Designated Players can now be managed in either the regular or transfer market. FIFA 21 includes a new "Club Director" mode. The new "Club Director" mode allows for the best, most authentic club management experience ever offered. The first task of the "Club Director" is to work with the experienced club management staff to plan for the upcoming season. While improvements were made to the Club management element in FIFA 20, fans will notice that the "Club Director" mode is the most in-depth and intuitive ever. This includes creating the ideal squad for upcoming seasons, creating reports and analyses on individual players and clubs, and examining the financial implications of bringing players in from across Europe. Enhanced AI In FIFA 21, every team will play with an intelligent and adaptive mindset - playing differently than their opponents and making tactical adjustments based on the action on the pitch. FIFA 21 will feature a brand-new "Hostile Yellow Card" system. All players will now be able to receive a "Yellow Card" for actions that are not fouls but not-yet-violent, such as a shove on a defender. If a player receives a "Yellow Card"
