A man has been charged with the murder of a dog after it was shot and thrown in a garbage bin at a popular downtown park. The dog was killed by a shotgun and its body thrown into a garbage bin in front of the Botanical Gardens at Queen and Burrard streets at around 5:30 p.m. Friday. The dog's owner, who is white, was seen with the dog. TransLink spokesman Chris Bryan said the pedestrian area has been a problem for the transit agency recently, as is always the case in Kitsilano. "I see a lot of pedestrians walking in and out of the TransLink area. They run to their car and they just start driving," said Bryan. Police have not been able to identify the owner of the shotgun and police believe it was not a random attack. The whereabouts of the owner are not known and investigators are hopeful the person will come forward. "It was a really small dog and it was a random offence. It's not random that this took place in the Botanical Garden," said Bryan. Bryan said police could work with the owner to assist in locating witnesses or who may have information leading to an arrest. The Humane Society is aware of the case and will be contacting the owner. TransLink is appealing to pedestrians to be aware of their surroundings and not leave a scene behind them.Q: NoSuchMethodException Android I have an issue with an Android app I am developing. I may ask you to think that whether it is personal issue or script related. Thanks for everything. A: That error code (601) means that something is wrong with your game folder (the folder that is the root of your World of Warcraft installation and in which you can find the Character Change, Interface, etc folders, which are used during the patch installation). The easiest thing to do would be to reinstall WoW and then just follow the patch installation instructions found in your in-game help screen. If that doesn't work (such as if you feel the game is screwing up because of a specific patch), then you'll have to try to diagnose the issue yourself. This is how I would do it, as I never found an easy-to-follow solution in the internet: First, create a new character on your character change to be sure your new character is going to be unaffected by the error (if the character is new, there shouldn't be anything in the Character Change folder and you should have no other characters on your account), and just take a screenshot of your character. Then, use Wow's in-game image editor to crop that picture so you can display a screenshot of your character in its proper state, and then save it to your desktop. The other screenshot should be the state of your character before the patch was installed, and should be saved in a folder of your choosing to compare against the file you just saved and saved as. Now you can go into your World of Warcraft installation folder (where the Character Change, Interface, etc folders should be located), and open each folder that has to do with your installation (Interface, Character Change, etc) and compare them both with a text editor (I prefer Notepad++ or Atom). Using Notepad++, each line will contain a text similar to this: [Path to WoW's installation folder]\Interface\Frames\ShowAllFrames.xml [Path to WoW's installation folder]\Interface\Frames\Cursor\Cursor.xml [Path to WoW's installation folder]\Interface\Frames\BossAnimations\Bosses.xml [Path to WoW's installation folder]\Interface\Frames\Help\Help.xml [Path to WoW's installation folder]\Interface\Frames\Game\Level.xml [Path to WoW's installation folder]\Interface\Frames\Menu\Login.
